BACKGROUND INFORMATION

The Reading and Language Arts Standards were approved at the at the January 2007 State Board of Education meeting. Since the release of the standards, further analysis was done by assessment and content advisory committees to ensure the alignment of benchmarks across all grade levels and consistency with format and punctuation. The benchmarks for each of the standards were correct, however, the number assigned to each benchmark varied at some grade levels. In addition the stem (e.g. The student will:) used for each standard were inconsistent among the standards at all grade levels. The technical amendment for the Reading and Language Arts standards aligns the numbering system for each benchmark from grade level to grade level; corrects punctuation and grammar errors; and ensures consistent stems for each of the standards from grade level to grade level.
