- 4.0 Demonstrate employability skills such as working in a group, problem-solving and organizational skills, and the importance of entrepreneurship.

Length: One class period

Objective: Students will understand how teams are used in the workplace and those skills that will make them effective team members.

Materials: Handout –The Team and Me

Description of Activity:

1. Ask students if they've been part of team, group, or organization. What was their role? How did they contribute? Examples could include sports, classroom projects, student organizations, etc.
2. Explain to students that many jobs require working on a team. A team may be formed to solve a problem, develop a product, work on a project, etc. Ask students why they think it would be beneficial to working with a team rather than doing something in isolation. What are some problems that would arise in working on a team? Examples could include some team members not contributing or completing their assignments, personality conflicts, members cannot agree, etc.
3. Review the The Team and Me handout and have students complete it.
4. When completed, discuss the students' responses. Ask them to list five ways they can improve their group membership skills.

Note: Students could develop teamwork skills by assigning teams to work on various assignments or projects throughout the course.

Evaluation: Students will analyze the skills that they have or need to improve to be an effective team member.
