

Professional Development Protocol Standards Matrix: District, School, Faculty Levels Follow-Up

District	School	Faculty
Transfer to Students: The district documents systematically the extent to which participants use the knowledge and skills learned in training to instruct students in the classroom.	Transfer to Students: The participants use the knowledge and skills learned in training to instruct students in the classroom.	Transfer to Students: The faculty member uses the knowledge and skills learned in training to instruct students in the classroom.
Coaching and Mentoring: The district incorporates into training coaching and mentoring activities for participants to ensure appropriate application of the knowledge and skills in the classroom that continues as needed until participants are implementing the new knowledge and skills correctly.	Coaching and Mentoring: The trainers or others provide support and assistance through coaching and mentoring to the participants to ensure appropriate application of the knowledge and skills in the classroom that continues as needed until participants are implementing the new knowledge and skills correctly.	Coaching and Mentoring: The trainers or others provide support and assistance through coaching and mentoring to the faculty member to ensure appropriate application of the knowledge and skills in the classroom that continues as needed until participants are implementing the new knowledge and skills correctly.
Web-based Resources and Assistance: The district provides school administrators and faculty with follow-up web-based resources, assistance, and discussion groups related to the training completed.	Web-based Resources and Assistance: The district provides school administrators and faculty with follow-up web-based resources, assistance, and discussion groups related to the training completed	Web-based Resources and Assistance: The district provides school administrators and faculty with follow-up web-based resources, assistance, and discussion groups related to the training completed.
Follow-up Coordination: The district coordinates the follow-up services provided across multiple schools receiving training.		