2017 Authorizer Report

Office of Independent Education and Parental Choice Florida Department of Education

By the Numbers

163 – Number of charter school applications districts received by February 1, 2018 (This number also includes applications submitted to districts by the previous deadline of August 1)

62 – Number of applications districts approved

38 percent – Average approval rate of applications submitted

93 – Number of applications to five counties alone: Miami-Dade (26); Palm Beach (22); Hillsborough (18); Broward (14); and Orange (13).

81 – Number of applications withdrawn from consideration before a local school board could make a decision at a publicly noticed meeting

5 – Number of virtual charter school applications submitted (only one was approved)

Summary

In the 2017 legislative session, lawmakers amended Section 1002.33(6), Florida Statutes, to change the deadline for the submission of charter school applications to local school districts and to lengthen the time districts took to review those applications. As a result, the data for this report includes information from two application cycles: applications submitted by the previous statutory deadline (in this case, August 1, 2017) and applications submitted by the newer deadline (February 1, 2018).

Reporting on two application cycles in a single report makes comparisons with previous years difficult. However, it is possible to glean highlights from this recent authorizing activity, and to state generally that the trends in 2017 are not radically different from 2016. The number of applications received during each of two cycles featured in this report were about the same as the number of applications submitted to districts in 2016. The total number of applications districts received by August 1, 2017, and by February 1, 2018, is 163<sup>1</sup>. Moreover, the combined application approval rate of 38 percent in 2017 is similar to that in 2016, when it was 41 percent.

Of course, statewide averages mask wide variation in approval rates between districts (see Findings below), but it remains the case – as manifest in recent years – that the majority of charter school applications in Florida failed to win approval. Those applications not approved were either denied by their local school board during a publicly noticed meeting or were withdrawn from consideration before the school board acted. A full summary for each district is provided for in Addendum A.

In addition to the change to the application deadlines, the Florida Legislature added two additional elements for this report. First, charter schools, starting in 2017, were required to complete a survey, provided by the Florida Department of Education, to rate the timeliness and quality of services provided by their local school districts. The results of this survey are included as Addendum B in this report. Second, district charter sponsors are now required to report to the Department, by September 15 of each year, the total amount of funding withheld from charter school in administrative fees. That information is included as Addendum C.

Key Findings

The biggest still account for the most. More than half of the 163 charter applications statewide were submitted to five of Florida's largest districts – Miami-Dade (26 applications); Palm Beach (22); Hillsborough County (18); Broward County (14); and Orange County (13).

Approval rates about the same as in 2016: About 38 percent of all charter applications were approved by local school districts. About half of all charter applications were withdrawn by applicants before their local school board could make a decision at a publicly noticed meeting. The rest (about 6 percent) were outright denied by local school boards.

Approval rates vary widely between districts: The 38-percent approval rate statewide masks wide variation between district authorizers. In Miami-Dade County, for instance, the district approved 81 percent of the 26 applications it received, while Palm Beach County approved just 9 percent – or only two – of the 22 applications it received.

Virtual charters. Only five applications for virtual charter schools were submitted – one in Miami-Dade County, one in Flagler County, and three in Hillsborough County. Only one of those five was approved – in Hillsborough County.

Authorizer development and accountability

The State of Florida continued to provide school districts professional development through the support of the federal Charter Schools Program initiative (CSP). In 2016, the Department was competitively awarded a $71 million grant from the CSP due, in part, to its proposals to enhance charter school authorizing and accountability. Notably, the Department has undertaken the following efforts, with more planned in the pipeline of this three-year grant project:

Performance framework: The Department, in collaboration with authorizers, operators, and national experts, is working to develop a statewide charter school performance framework that will provide authorizers, schools, and the public with a standardized set of objective measures to evaluate the academic, financial, and organizational performance of regular (including virtual) and alternative charter schools. Upon completing the framework, the Department will develop a delivery mechanism to allow authorizers, operators, and the public to view each charter school's performance on the measures included in the framework.

Authorizer accountability: The Department, in collaboration with authorizers and national experts, is working to develop a statewide authorizer dashboards, of sorts. A tool such as this will provide for greater transparency of the decisions made by authorizers and the outcomes that result.

Florida Leaders in Authorizing: This fellowship program is providing select, high-potential leaders among Florida's authorizers an opportunity to strengthen and hone their skills. Participants will have the chance to build their capacity by visiting four of the top charter school authorizers in the nation. Two fellows have been chosen in the Department's first cohort. They will be visiting and observing the best practices at the following authorizers:

- The D.C. Public Charter School Board
- The State University of New York Charter School Institute
- The Massachusetts Department of Education
- Denver Public Schools

When the fellows return from their visits, they will be expected to present to their colleagues what they learn and disseminate their best practices through the Florida Association of Charter School Authorizers.

Targeted training and support. Through a partnership with the National Association of Charter School Authorizers (NACSA) the Department has undertaken a series of trainings for authorizers that dive deeply into *the Florida Principles and Standards of Quality Charter School Authorizing*. Additionally, the Department, also through a partnership with NACSA, has helped to train school districts on the best practices of interview techniques so that they can better assess an applicant's capacity to open and operate a high-quality charter school.
